" Our holiday home has a secadou, small heritage built remarkable region. The secadou in occitan means dryer, in this case, dryers for chestnuts, which constituted an essential part of the diet of the inhabitants of the Cévennes mountains. The secadou is a small stone building surmounted by a Lee schist (large Slate) roof. It is in two parts: an upper part with a permeable floor where are stored the chestnuts and a lower part with ground one fire that peasants were hatching to within a few weeks dry chestnuts. Graissessac is a magnificent cevenol village that has kept his soul. Its inhabitants are proud. You are in the countryside, surrounded by woods, mountains in the heart of the Parc Regional du Haut-Languedoc. "
