Surroundings & location

Seaside

"Mistraki is classified by the Greek Ministry of Culture as an area of historical interest. The houses are more than a hundred years and built from local stone. A traditional hamlet with stone paved paths, citrus trees, spring water well and a small church. Technological developments have made little impact in Mistraki. Agriculture is of crucial importance; especially the cultivation of olives for the production of olive oil. There are no shops, bars or other tourist distractions, only the chatter of crickets and the occasional bray of a donkey. Messinia has endless sandy beaches, fertile valleys and imposing mountains for walkers, cyclists and nature lovers. An area rich in history, culture and ancient myth. You can enjoy many activities: swimming, sunbathing, fishing, snorkeling, sailing, turtle watching, olive picking, wild flowers, horse riding and bird watching."
